About the Workshop

My knowledge and experience qualifies me to guide students in the following domains of our work:

- How to start the therapeutic process with history taking.
- Seeing and understanding bodies in motion and stillness.
- Roling technique and connective tissue work (old -style Roling).
- All my knowledge about orthopedic diagnoses like herniated discs, hip and knee replacement, and other joint pathologies. (I have been working as a physical therapist for 10 years before becoming a Rolfer, specializing in orthopedic pathology and severe back problems).
- Nutrition and detoxification - how to recognize unhealthy tissue and what to do about them.
 - Psychological coaching for the practitioner – issues of transference and countertransference.
- How to work in an economic way as a therapist, without doing too much or too little (how to avoid burnout).
- Learning to recognize traumatic wounding, depression, anxiety and other psychological disorders.
 - How to structure your sessions and your days of working.

We will use our group wisdom in discovering the best way to serve our clients and ourselves so that our work stays exciting and inspiring for us.
