

Supervision Workshop for Rolfers in March 2020

By Anna Neil-Raduner

What is effective supervision?

Supervision is about sharing, showing and giving support to help another person make progress and feel comfortable in their work. It involves making time and developing a practical structure to provide this support. ... Good supervision enables the Rolfering practitioner to: build effective professional relationships and to do good structural and movement integration work.

there are still some places available for the supervision workshop 13th, 14th and 15th of march 2020!

Please come and join this occasion to learn from my experience of 45 years of being a therapist.

bring your questions about:

- body reading
- structural questions
- movement and expression
- recognising transference
- creating a healthy therapeutical relationship
- medical diagnosis like herniated disc, hip, knee or shoulder operations
- connective tissue health

Bring your difficult cases, where you are stuck (maybe come with their pictures), bring yourself with all your doubts and I will try my best to be there and share all I have learnt and am still learning in my many years of working with clients.

For housing, contact Anna so that we can provide you with the most affordable solution to fit your need.
